

Day 15: Economics (Greenest)

When I think of art, the first thing that comes to my mind is expression, opinion, feelings and liberty. Many times, people connect the word art with great paintings or beautiful sculptures but we forget that art is the greatest form of expression we have. It's the one that can reach millions of persons and make them understand situations. I believe that when it comes to activism, a little amount of people gets involved because it's only presented by newspapers or articles. If political activism and art merges, I strongly believe that more people will be touched by the movement. Because when we see art, and when we give us the time to appreciate the art piece it's the moment we understand the opinion and the feeling the artist is trying to express over a certain situation. "I prefer drawing to talking. Drawing is faster, and leaves less room for lies." Le Corbusier.

Looking for a new bank

This part of the challenge was very difficult for me, because now I haven't signed a contract with any bank and I don't feel that I need a bank with my actual needs. I have a debit card given by my university but it's deactivated because I don't used it. Also, I live in Monterrey, Mexico, and it was very difficult for me search in what project the banks invest the money, and I don't truly know how to search this data. But probably if I had to change my money of account, I would probably do it, because I believe that if the bank fulfils my expectations and vision about the word I should do my part and invest with them. I also believe that if my bank shares my interests it would be easy to interact with them.

The image shows five M&M's characters (Yellow, Blue, Orange, Red, and Green) holding various protest signs. The signs read: "UNLABELED", "BUILT-IN INSECTICIDES", "LABELED OR BANNED AROUND THE GLOBE", "NO LONG TERM SAFETY TESTING", and "GMO'S ARE LADDED WITH ROUNDUP (A PROBABLE CARCINOGEN)".

Tell Mars to Ditch the GMOs

Mars has taken important steps to remove artificial flavors and label GMOs. Tell Mars it's time to show the love to consumers and the environment and ditch GMOs once and for all.

greensquad2017 I believe that true change begins when the important people act in an important event. In this moment we need Mars to ditch GMOs, we need to care for the consumers. We cannot risk the life of the consumers because they're the most important part of a business, without them there is no business. If Mars give the step of eliminating GMOs other enterprises will follow their steps. Great changes begin with a little step.

End Smartphone Sweatshops

Roughly half the world's smartphones are made in China, where tens of millions work in the electronics-manufacturing sector. These workers are regularly exposed to dangerous chemicals without protective gear or adequate training, and some are developing greensquad2017 In the modern days, cheap labor force seems to be the only thing factories search. Sometimes enterprises risk in an indirect form the lives of their workers in the first part of production. Today smartphones production makes many workers sick due to hazardous gases. Let's begin a movement and act to improve the quality of life of the workers at the bottom of the hierarchy. At the end of the day, we are all humans trying to live at the Earth. @turninggreenorg #pgc2017
