Project Green Challenge Greener

Ocean Robbins *Environmentalist*

I think Ocean is really inspirational because he genuinely cares about how anyone's diet affects the environment. He researches better, more sustainable ways to grow crops, and supports organic GMO-free foods. He states, "I'm passionate about real, healthy, fair trade, natural, sustainable, local, plant-strong and delicious food. And I love to see more and more who are bringing their food choices into alignment with what they really want, and with what they really love." I think that this in itself proves how much passion he has for the Earth, and human health. He says it himself, he thinks that fair trade is crucial to have in communities, as well as local produce.

Today is the 23rd day of #PGC2017!! The theme for the day is Non-GMO. I researched an activist for the Non-GMO movement, named Ocean Robbins. He stated, "I'm passionate about real, healthy, fair trade, natural, sustainable, local, plant-strong and delicious food. And I love to see more and more who are bringing their food choices into alignment with what they really want, and with what they really love." He thinks that GMO's need to be avoided at all costs, and that they are harming the environment as well as humans in extreme cases. #nonGMO!

I found this video & infographic that illustrate my beliefs for GMO's, and how they harm the planet. 😊
