

After learning a lot through PGC, I plan to dedicate my life to environmental stewardship. After high school, I want to study environmental sciences and sustainability to learn more on how to preserve the earth and care for its inhabitants. I hope that a major in this field will allow me to make large global changes that will promote biodiversity and limit human effects on the environment and its beauty. I want to increase global appreciation of the planet through photos and documentaries. My dream is to travel the world to show each and every person the natural beauty that lies in their own country and inspire them to appreciate and preserve it.

VISION

I will be a powerful role model by implementing conscious elements into my lifestyle. I will advocate zero waste by using zero waste guides to live without polluting the planet. I will help laborers by refusing to shop at fast fashion corporations and instead buy organic, free trade products. I will restore ethical treatment of animals by continuing a vegan lifestyle. I will promote the use of hemp by purchasing hemp-based products and showing them to those around me. I will improve environmental and human health by making my own DIY cleaners for home use. The possibilities to set a sustainable example are endless, and I have a vision that I will create that example for those around me through my food, clothes, and actions.

Instagram Post

isaacgoesgreen Over the course of PGC I developed my passion for preserving biodiversity by limiting pollutants. I believe it is completely illogical to decimate the wondrous home that we inhabit. We need to start taking responsibility for our actions and appreciate our planet. The beauty of the earth rests in our hands, and we must protect it and the inhabitants of the planet. "It is the stewards of the earth that benefit the most from natural beauty."
