Speech

Welcome today to the most inspiring and most distraught time in our lives. There are issues turning into bigger piles than that wastelands in our world. That being said is a lot. These issues are growing amongst us all and resemble three distinct features. Climate Change, Collaboration, Control. These three things are what is stopping us from seeing a better and brighter future for not only us, but the people to come and generations to follow.

Climate change is something that has turned into one of the biggest discussions and problems within the world as a whole. We focus on profits instead of procedure. The industry in fossil fuels has caused these super storms to take control and take out areas with our own people on it....

Cont.

These people being innocently killed or abandoned or jobless based upon the effects that we cause ourselves. We aren't just in a war with other countries, but with the world itself. Causing these emissions to be unbalanced and causing these tragic events ourselves. We sit back and find something else to blame but can't even face fact that it's so simple. Climate Change affects us people just as much it does the world and there are still people that don't believe in this. We need to set aside the personal opinion and give the world an opinion. Give the world a chance.

Collaboration is something that we are lacking so much of in the U.S. and many other places...

We all sit here today being collaborative about change, but imagine if we had more than just the few hundred in the room today. Imagine instead of trying to come to one decision, there were more ways than one to make a change. We all stand in debates today on what needs to be fixed and what needs to change. I don't ever see much disagreements and more the less just more options to choose from. So instead of just one answer, why not have more. Give the whole population their own answers. We need to come together and collaborate a change instead of fighting the change. No one in today's society likes or wants a fight, we want a end, but the only end I am seeing is the end to this world. So instead of us all in war with each other, let's stand together, stand as one, and make our own change. Change without judgement or discrimination.

The last thing I want to talk about today is Control. We work so hard today to make things “better” and more “different”. Are we making it better though? Are we having a controlled environment around us? I think we like to believe we have climate control and a handle on things today, but can’t accept we are just not thinking or even looking around us. We need to step back from this thought process of being in control of one another and think about how we can control major world issues. Not having control of who gets drafted into the next NFL roster. We are blinded by all the glamor and colors that we don’t see the fadedness that is really there. We pretend that everything is ok and the world is doing fine the way it is, but eventually there won’t be control, because there will be nothing to control.

Cont.

I stand here before you all not just asking you to make a change, but promoting change. Promoting the change that is needed to building a better and more green world for our families and children and everyone that is to come into this world. Collecting everyone here and showing that Collaboration within all cultures and all societies should be unified and that with proper control, we can make a change and most importantly a climate change for the better. Thank you.
