

Good evening sir , I'm writing to you today in three capacities at the least

1. A Resident of the United Kingdom
2. A global citizen
3. An activist for climate change participating in “ The Project Green challenge “

I understand that we are dealing with a Global pandemic and the way our Government has handled and implemented its efforts leaves us proud as a nation amidst feelings of sadness, our country has provided hope .

However , there is one pressing issue that I feel our Government can aim to prioritise alongside COVID-19 , as the two are inseparable when considering the fate of humanity.

There are a number of stand alone policies in place supporting climate change in the UK however I urge you to consider amalgamating these into legislation more solidly and impact-fully.

Our efforts to unite and make change amidst a Global pandemic has proven our ability to do so when urged ,however in respect of Covid-19 it was at an expense we ought not to have incurred in order to wake up to the reality of our planets suffering , should we have acted sooner .

I ask that some consideration be given to making it regulation for products to visibly display their compliance with environmental guidelines

(from the very start of the production plan, right to the delivery onto shelves etc )

This could be a clearly indicated visual scale in colours ranging from orange being “ not very compliant “ to red being “ not at all compliant

“ and green being “ very compliant “ , this would allow consumers to make informed decisions faster and more effectively as they now do with clearly displayed health implications on cigarette packets .

A further step could be to add a environmental compliance tax on every product purchased , making it raise awareness on the buyers end ( consumers tend to pay more attention to when prices are decreased or increased for specific reasons and would thus make informed choices accordingly )

COVID-19 will pass ,optimistically and realistically speaking and it's inevitable that the government must prioritise the economy and other facets of society that have suffered ,however when do we tend to the sufferings of our planet which is running into an environmental time deficit and has been long before COVID-19 , it's just a matter of time before we heal humans and they no longer feel they owe it to the planet to make sure it heals , the only reason there has been a Grace period to the planets suffering was because we had a direct threat on humanity that, the minute that is solved , it's out of sight out of mind . I suggest we make it visible permanently , when buying milk , when purchasing bread when thinking about our daily essentials and responsibilities , we comply habitually , we consider and respect our planet the way we do parking fines and cigarette guidelines .

Yours sincerely

zah_kaj If you could have an environmental policy change what would it be ? .
Don't dismiss your contributions , the tallest tree was once just a seed .
