Make a list of five furniture or decor items you may need. Perhaps a dresser, a rug, a sofa, and the like. Or decor such as paintings, prints, planters, and pillows.

I mostly just needed decor, because in a small college dorm I have no room for any furniture.

Once you find or make five objects that meet the needs on your list, take a picture or screenshot of each to share with us. Be sure to note where you found each, why it's sustainable and/or what materials you used to make it.

Picture frame white board: Picture frame I've had for awhile and a photo of a dragon (I think it's a band album cover, my friend gave it to me because she thought it matched me), and a dry erase marker.

Potted plant: Got it for free from a college event! Currently chilling with my window of plants. I'm going to paint it when I have the time, but classes are chaotic.

Stamp Photo: I recently got a few stamps from the craft store, and decided to make a little print to hang on my corkboard. I also included my spotted lantern fly, which is a long story about revenge against an invasive species :)

Crochet Coaster: I made another one because I love them. They're made with cotton yarn and are really nice to have at my desk!

Wild vine: I suppose this would be considered me finding it, but this has been in my possession for a little bit. It's a vine that I took from a bush outside that was smothering the plant. I put it in some water, and it's starting to really grow a bit over a week ago. As its been getting bigger I've been wrapping it around things on my desk and windowsill (depending on where it is), because it likes to drape on things. I think it's cute so I consider it decor.

mbrody_pgc Im looking for sustainable home goods to make my dorm look nice, since I can't really do much more than decorate it. I got some plants from college, found some on a bush, and made some stuff!
