Research on politicians

Politician 1: Dr. Dipu Moni

The person I choose as my first politician is a member of the parliament, and she is a supporter of the power-holding party. Currently, she is working in the education ministry.

Politician 1 has worked on many important issues relating to education. Among them is eliminating the exam system till class 3 to release pressure on the students and provide an education system where all students will learn every sector of the knowledge (since, arts, commerce) until college.

Both issues are significant and essential for the future of Bangladesh from my perspective. These two decisions will help students mentally and prepare them with more resources, knowledge, and opportunities for the future. Though I have passed the time of college and am a university student right now, it will be fruitful for my future generation.

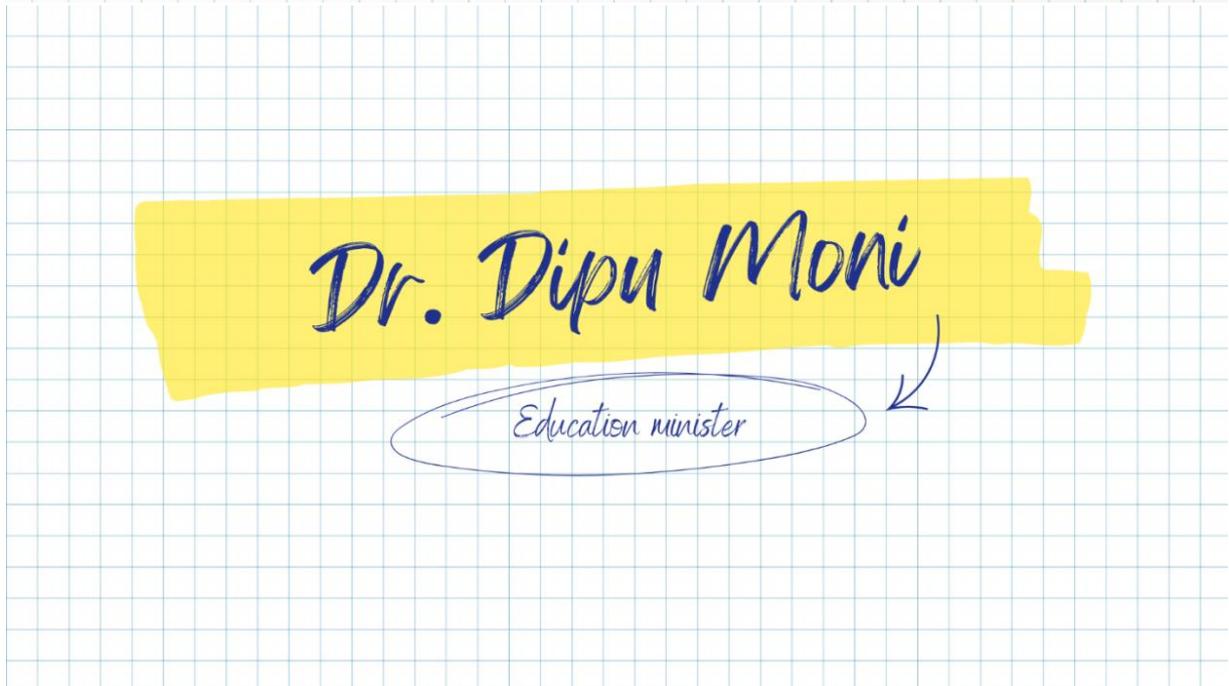

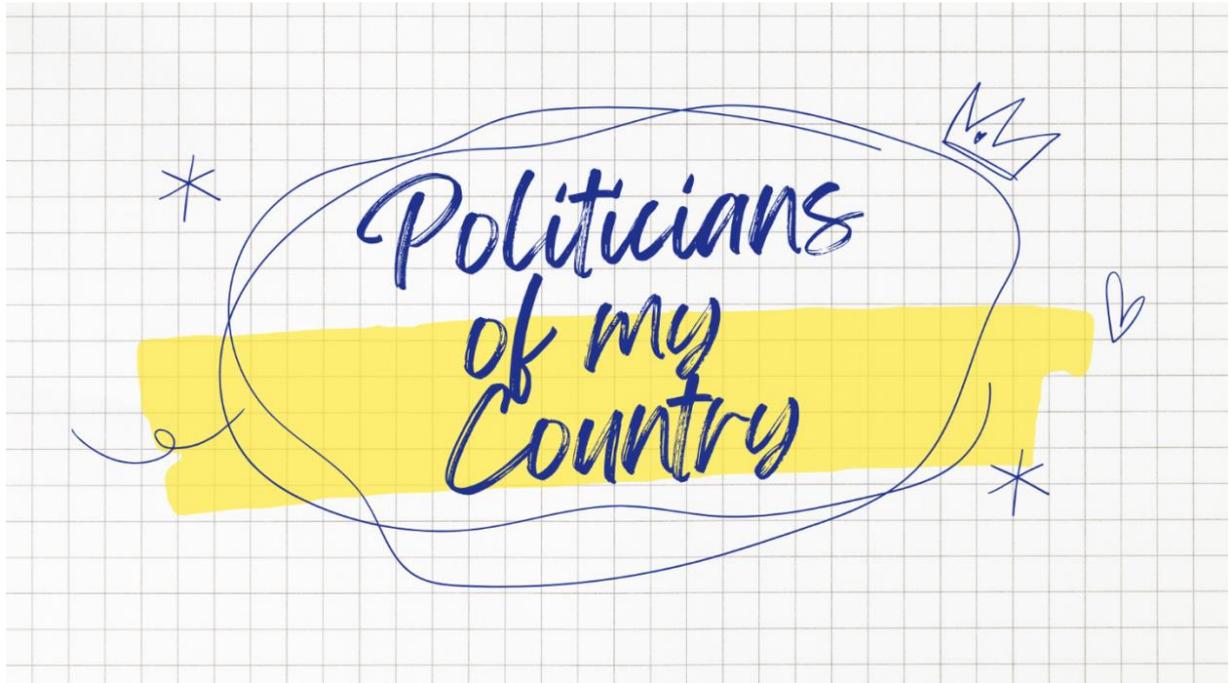

Politician 2: Barrister Andalib Rahman Partho

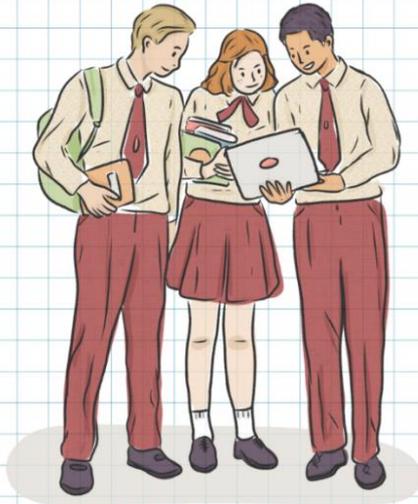

this person is not from the power-holding party and is not a member of the parliament. But he was a member of the parliament before. This person is running for the home ministry official.

Among the issues he has spoken about, two of them are, one is the corruption in the power generation policy of the government and another is the independence of the judicial system.

Now, these issues highlight the two dark and most corrupt sides of my country. On the one hand, a particular group is getting contracts for power-generating projects, which are called quick rental projects. And as per the policy, the government has to pay them much money when they are not providing any power. They are getting this money by using some flaws and loopholes in the policy. This is causing a significant economic crisis in the country as the price of electricity is rising. On the other hand, the judicial system of Bangladesh is not independent. It is mainly bound to the parliament and the politicians. That's why corrupted politicians remain out of reach of the justice system and are allowed to do the corruption.
