

Amelia Southern Uribe
Amelia Southern-Urbe
University of Arkansas

@LatinoOutdoors resonates with me profoundly because it aligns with the vibrant and diverse Latino communities that thrive in Florida. These communities often have deep-rooted connections to the environment, making the mission of @LatinoOutdoors even more significant.

In Florida, where Latino communities are a significant part of the population, having a cultural hub like @LatinoOutdoors is crucial. It provides a space where people from Latino backgrounds can come together, celebrate their heritage, and collectively advocate for the protection of the environment.

As someone who grew up in Florida and witnessed the environmental challenges, such as the Deepwater Horizon oil spill, I've seen how these events impact our communities. @LatinoOutdoors serves as a unifying force, fostering a sense of belonging in outdoor spaces that are often taken for granted.

Their efforts to make the outdoors accessible and inclusive inspire me, reinforcing the importance of preserving these natural treasures for future generations of Latinos in Florida and beyond. The organization's work bridges cultural and environmental passions, emphasizing the significance of community in the pursuit of environmental conservation.