Day 22: Greenest

LETTER:

Dear Ma'am/Sir!

I hope this letter finds you in good health and high spirits. I am writing to propose the resurrection of a composting project at Visayas State University and the creation of a Material Recovery Facility (MRF) specifically for the university's dormitories.

Composting is an environmentally friendly practice that can greatly benefit the university community. It reduces waste and landfill use while producing nutrient-rich compost that can be used for landscaping, gardening, and agricultural purposes. By implementing a composting program, Visayas State University can contribute to sustainability efforts and set an example for other institutions.

In addition to the composting project, I also propose the establishment of an MRF for the dormitories. An MRF is a dedicated facility where recyclable materials can be sorted, processed, and prepared for recycling. This would ensure that valuable resources are properly managed and diverted from the waste stream.

To kickstart this initiative, I suggest forming a task force comprising staff, faculty, and students who are passionate about sustainability. This task force can oversee the planning, implementation, and monitoring of the composting project and MRF.

In terms of funding, we can explore various options such as seeking grants, partnering with local businesses or organizations, and engaging the university community in fundraising activities. Additionally, we can leverage existing resources and expertise within the university to minimize costs and maximize efficiency.

I firmly believe that the implementation of a composting project and the creation of an MRF for the dormitories will not only enhance the sustainability efforts of Visayas State University but also foster a culture of environmental responsibility among its students and staff.

Attached below is the proposal. Thank you for considering this proposal, and I look forward to your positive response.

Sincerely,

Evalyn
