Instagram Post:

voices resilience

"One of the negative impacts of climate change is unpredictable weather like heatwaves, droughts, and flooding that leads to crop damage and food insecurity. Grassroots organizations work in the community to educate, raise awareness and promote sustainable garden and farming practices. This is a small but powerful influence."

"One way I can help stop climate change is to ride my bike instead of using a car. I can also carpool with my friends."

Caption: I spoke with family, classmates, and community members about how climate change affects their lives, and what changes could make an impact. From planting trees, to environmental education, and protecting vulnerable neighbors, their voices remind us that resilience starts small but grows when we act together. #PGC2025 @turninggreenorg
