Here is our short podcast talking about food waste! We exposed the problem in our community: Yucatán, Mérida. Just like anywhere else, food waste is a problem here, fortunately there already exists ongoing efforts to tackle this issue.

For example, the most inspiring part is the existing effort: Disco Sopa Mérida! Led by organizations, including the Anáhuac Mayab, this movement intercepts over a ton of "ugly" or surplus food and turns it into meals for those in need. It's the perfect example of the "Feed It Onward" principle I learned from the EPA initiative.

The solution we found to be most effective is compost! We came to this conclusion due to the fact that here in Yucatán, most of the food waste is made up by fruits and vegetables. Which are essential for composting!

Let's make sure less food goes to the landfill and more goes to those who need it! 🌱🌍🌿 @turninggreenorg @wwf @foodtank @ukonserve #pgc2025
